banks (incl. retail banks and offices)

With a growing need to provide healthier indoor environments, a high standard of IAQ in banks can reassure customers and staff that their wellbeing is valued. At the same time, receiving IAQ certification highlights an organisation's commitment to quality and excellence.

The IAQ Information Centre and the Hong Kong General Chamber of Commerce have partnered to invite expert speakers to share on the importance of good IAQ in banks and the experience in participating the IAQ Certification Scheme. This free webinar will help banks to gain a better understanding of the value of good IAQ in their facilities.

Effective Indoor Air Quality (IAQ) Management for Banks

Background

The Environmental Protection Department (EPD) has launched a voluntary “IAQ Certification Scheme for Office and Public Places” since 2003 to promote healthy indoor environment and to raise public awareness on the importance of IAQ.

This seminar is co-organised by the IAQ Information Centre and the Hong Kong General Chamber of Commerce. The IAQ Information Centre is established by the EPD to promote IAQ awareness and provide IAQ information to various sectors of the community.
